KELVIN SAMPSON • HEAD COACH

FIRST YEAR AT INDIANA • 24TH YEAR AS A HEAD COACH

Kelvin Sampson, a two-time national coach of the year who led Oklahoma to 11 NCAA Tournament appearances (three Sweet 16, two Elite Eight and one Final Four), ten 20-plus win seasons, three Big 12 Tournament titles and a share of the 2004-05 regular season league crown in his 12-year Sooner tenure, was named Indiana University's 26th head basketball coach on March 29, 2006.

Sampson has long admired Indiana's tradition and success, and the veteran head coach looks forward to building upon these laurels.

"Indiana is synonymous with basketball," Sampson said. "Every coach sees it as a great basketball state with tremendous high school coaches and players."

Within his first five months at the helm of the Indiana program, Sampson made numerous public appearances around the state. and immediately felt a common bond with the Hoosier Nation.

"The thing that I respect most about Indiana fans is the passion that they have for their university and their basketball program," Sampson said. "As a staff, we share that passion with them. I have had fun traveling throughout the state — Marion, Elkhart, Ft. Wayne, New Albany, Bloomington, Indianapolis, Batesville. Everywhere I have been, the reception has been both humbling and motivating."

Sampson brings some impressive credentials with him to Bloomington, including a 455-257 (.639) overall head coaching record and a 279-109 (.719) ledger at OU. Sampson averaged 23 wins per season during his 12-year Oklahoma career, and the Sooners were sixth in the nation with 156 victories and a .776 winning percentage from 1999-00 to 2004-05. OU finished among the top three of the Big 12 Conference eight of the last 10 years, and have won 12 of their last 17 overtime games (18-11 total).

With a 20-9 record in 2005-06, Sampson coached OU to its ninth consecutive 20-win season. Including this season, only five other coaches have posted 20 victories each of the last nine years: Lute Olson (16), Tubby Smith (13), Mike Krzyzewski (10), Jim Boeheim (nine) and Jim Calhoun (nine).

Sampson's club was productive on the court and in the classroom. The squad posted a 3.14 grade point average (GPA) for the 2005 fall semester, setting a single-semester record for the 12-year Sampson era. Eight of the 12 team members recorded a GPA of 3.0 or higher.

Sampson amassed 111 regular season Big 12 victories, the most in league history. He was 111-49 (.694) in conference play since the formation of the Big 12 in 1996-97. Sampson also holds the Big 12 record for most combined regular season and conference tournament wins (he was 128-56) as well as the mark for most overall wins by a conference coach since the Big 12 inception (he was 239-87).

Under Sampson's leadership, Oklahoma enjoyed one of the most successful three-year runs in school history from 2000-03. The Sooners were 84-19 (.816), won three-straight Big 12 Tournament titles and advanced to the 2002 NCAA Final Four (before losing to Indiana in the national semifinals) and the 2003 NCAA Elite Eight.

Sampson was named Oklahoma's coach on April 25, 1994, after seven successful seasons at Washington State. One of only four men to win 20 or more games in a single season in Washington State history, Sampson directed the 22-11 Cougars to the 1992 National Invitation Tournament (NIT), and earned Pac 10 Conference Coach of the Year honors in the process. Sampson concluded his stay in Pullman by leading Washington State to a 20-11 mark and the 1994 NCAA Tournament, the Cougars' first NCAA Tournament appearance in 11 years.

Sampson served as an assistant coach at WSU from 1985-87. He began his head coaching career at the helm of the Montana Tech program from 1981-85. After spending the 1981-82 campaign as the interim head coach, Sampson led the Orediggers to a 73-45 mark in his final four years. Montana Tech had won just 17 games in the three years combined prior to Sampson's arrival. He closed his Montana Tech tenure with three-straight Frontier League titles.

Sampson also boasts an extensive background with USA Basketball. He was the head coach of the 2004 USA Basketball World Championship for Young Men qualifying team that posted a 5-0 record and earned a gold medal in Halifax, Nova Scotia. That 2004 squad featured former Hoosier standout Bracey Wright and captured the United States' first gold medal in the event since 1996.

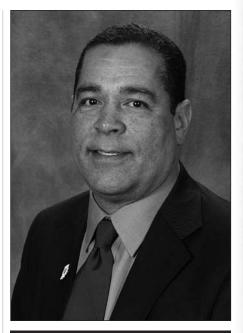

Sampson, San Antonio Spurs coach Gregg Popovich and Golden State Warriors coach Mike Montgomery were assistant coaches to George Karl on the 2002 USA Men's World Championship team in Indianapolis. That squad included current NBA stars Paul Pierce, Michael Finley, Elton Brand and Baron Davis.

In the summer of 1995, Sampson served as head coach of the USA Men's Junior World Championship team that played in Larissa and Athens, Greece. That team featured current NBA players Vince Carter and Stephon Marbury.

Sampson was an assistant coach to George Raveling on the 1994 USA Goodwill Games team that competed in St. Petersburg, Russia. Damon Stoudemire, Shawn Respert, Finley and Tim Duncan led that club to the bronze medal.

Sampson began his USA Basketball tenure as the head coach of the 1993 Olympic Festival West team in San Antonio, Texas. Jerod Haase, Charles O'Bannon and Jerald Honeycutt helped that club to the silver medal

For each of the past two years, Sampson has been among the nation's top college coaches participating in "Operation Hardwood - Hoops with the Troops," an eight-team U.S. Army troops' basketball tournament in Kuwait. In August of 2005, Sampson joined Michigan State's Tom Izzo, Alabama's Mark Gottfried, South Carolina's Dave Odom, Charlotte's Bobby Lutz, former Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins, former St. John's coach Mike Jarvis and ESPN analyst Jay Bilas for the debut event. This past May, Sampson, returned to Kuwait and directed his team to the tournament title, but the reward went well beyond the trophy.

"I met 12-15 soldiers from the state of Indiana. When you greet them, you can just feel that kinship. They just want to stop and talk to you and ask questions about the team and how things are going. They were telling me the Indy 500 was that particular weekend, and were asking if I had ever been to the race. Even though they are racing fans, you can tell they are passionate about IU Basketball, which was great to see.

"There is such a sense of gratification when you go to bed at night, and a sense of excitement when you wake up in the morning. Last year's experience was amazing, but this one tops it. You just feel so good about what you are doing, and what you have been able to give back to these young men and women."

Sampson was extensively involved in numerous Norman community organizations, and plans to continue this community involvement at Indiana.

Sampson has served as co-chairman of the United Way and Special Olympics and instituted the Sooner Reading Program, where OU players and staff visited every elementary school in the Norman area to communicate the importance of reading. Sampson has also participated in functions for the American Lung Association, American Cancer Society, Boys and Girls Clubs, Boy Scouts of America and the Children's Miracle Network.

Sampson was born on Oct. 5, 1955, in Laurinburg, N.C. He was raised in Pembroke, N.C. and was an all-league three-sport star (football, basketball and baseball) at Pembroke High School. He captained his high school basketball team for two years, coached by his father, John W. "Ned" Sampson.

Sampson enrolled at Pembroke State University (now UNC Pembroke) where he earned four letters in basketball and three in baseball. He was a Dean's List student and received the Gregory Lowe Memorial Award as the school's outstanding physical education major as a senior.

Sampson received bachelor's degrees in health and physical education and political science in 1978 and his master's degree in coaching and administration from Michigan State in 1980. During his stay in East Lansing, he served as a graduate assistant to Jud Heathcote.

Sampson, who was inducted into the Montana Tech Hall of Fame in 1996 and the Pembroke State Hall of Fame in 1998, is married to the former Karen Lowery. They have one daughter, Lauren, and one son, Kellen. Lauren is an account executive with IU Sports Properties, a division of Learfield Communications. Kellen is a walk-on senior for the Oklahoma basketball team.

Coach Sampson directed his team, Camp Arifjan, to the Operation Hardwood II tournament title May 23-29, 2006 in Kuwait. This is the second straight year that Sampson participated in the event, which features some of the nation's top coaches.

USA BASKETBALL

Kelvin Sampson has played a key role in the growth of USA Basketball. During the summer of 2004, Sampson served as head coach of the USA World Championship for Young Men Qualifying Team. Assisted by Minnesota's Dan Monson and Marquette's Tom Crean, the U.S. captured the gold medal in Halifax, Nova Scotia, downing Venezuela, Brazil and Puerto Rico (twice) to capture the gold medal. This 12-player team included eventual 2005-06 NBA Rookie of the Year Chris Paul, former North Carolina star and current Charlotte Bobcat Sean May and former Indiana standout Bracey Wright.

Sampson assisted George Karl and worked alongside San Antonio Spurs coach Gregg Popovich and Golden State Warriors coach Mike Montgomery on the 2002 USA Men's World Championship Team staff. That team featured NBA stars Paul Pierce, Michael Finley, Elton Brand, Baron Davis and Ben Davis.

In the summer of 1995, Sampson was named head coach of the USA Men's Junior World Championship Team that competed in Larissa and Athens, Greece.

Sampson worked with former IU star Alan Henderson as a staff member of the 1994 USA Goodwill Games team that earned a bronze medal in St. Petersburg, Russia. Led by head coach George Raveling, the 1994 Goodwill Games team was headlined by Damon Stoudemire, Shawn Respert, Finley and Tim Duncan.

In the summer of 1993, Sampson directed the West Team to the silver medal at the U.S. Olympic Festival in San Antonio, Texas. That team included Jerod Haase, Charles O'Bannon, Jerald Honeycutt and Mark Henderickson.

OPERATION HARDWOOD II

For the second consecutive year, Kelvin Sampson was among college basketball's elite coaches to participate in the eight-team Operation Hardwood II basketball tournament in Kuwait on May 23-29, 2006.

Sampson was one of six coaches returning after taking part in "Operation Hardwood - Hoops With The Troops" in August, 2005.

Sampson directed his team, Camp Arifjan, to the tournament title. However, the entire trip provided a true championship experience.

"I am honored that they asked me to go to Kuwait, and I was touched that they asked me to go back," Sampson said. "The ones that get the most out of it are the coaches, because you don't realize how insignificant you really are until you go to a place like this. What they are doing is significant. As Americans, we have the right to agree or disagree with the war, but I think it is our responsibility to support the men and women of the military while they are over there fighting for our rights."

During his trip, Sampson maintained a diary for the official website of Indiana Athletics, iuhoosiers.com. The following is the final excerpt from his diary:

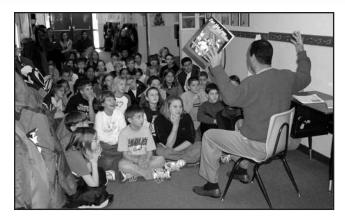

With this being our last day, it was truly an emotional, emotional time. It started with my team winning the championship, which was exciting for all of us. We won three games and it was a credit to how hard my team worked. These soldiers were amazing. They never complained during the high temperatures and you never had to ask anything of them twice.

I can't say enough good things and give enough thanks to the troops. These soldiers I have been around the last week have been tremendous and it was a life-changing experience. I was proud to serve with the members that went.

This entire trip really showed what's important to me. It was an amazing, terrific experience and I thank the Lord for giving me this opportunity. I am looking forward to returning to Bloomington and using what I have learned here to make the student-athletes better people on and off the court.

These soldiers are motivating and incredible. After we won the championship, six of my players left to go to Iraq in a convoy. How's that for irony? Here we are, elated after winning the tournament, and now they have to dodge mortar fire and enemy combat. The tournament is over and now it's time to go back to work.

There were so many hugs and emotions today. My assistant coach during the tournament, Sergeant Major David Vreeland, has been in the military for 26 years and has seen and heard it all. It was a moving experience to work with an individual like him. I invited him to come to Bloomington, as well as a few of the soldiers, and maybe we could honor him some way for what he has given this country, his fellow soldiers and myself. I thanked him on behalf of Indiana University and the state of Indiana for a great week.

Community involvement is a trademark of Kelvin Sampson-coached basketball teams, and the first-year Hoosier head coach is working to make his program's presence felt throughout Bloomington.

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

Kelvin Sampson takes great pride in his players' success on the court and in the classroom, and is even more proud of their involvement in the community. Competitiveness, discipline and unselfishness are not the only trademarks of Sampson-coached teams. During stints at Washington State and Oklahoma, Sampson and his players built and maintained a strong presence in local elementary school and community organization programs, and he plans to continue this at Indiana.

The Little Dribbler Program provides an opportunity for first through eighth graders to play basketball and learn different fundamentals from Indiana players and coaches on Saturday mornings of select home games. Each Little Dribbler will receive a t-shirt, a Little Dribbler's membership card, a basketball, an autographed photo of the 2006-07 Hoosier Basketball team and a media guide.

Sampson, his staff and the players will host members of the Monroe County Special Olympics program this fall. The Special Olympians will have an opportunity to meet and greet the IU players and coaches, play basketball on the storied Branch McCracken Court and tour the IU facilities.

The Indiana coaches and players will also make weekly visits to each of Bloomington 's 14 elementary schools in an effort to promote the importance of reading, and they will make periodic visits to Riley's Children's Hospital in Indianapolis.

COACHING STAFF

RAY MCCALLUM • ASSISTANT COACH FIRST YEAR AT INDIANA • 23RD YEAR AS A COLLEGE COACH

Ray McCallum returns to his home roots in the state of Indiana as a first-year assistant coach on the Hoosiers' staff. The Ball State University graduate brings amore than 20 years of coaching experience to IU, including two stints as a head coach at the Division I level. Additionally, McCallum is in his third year alongside IU head coach Kelvin Sampson, after spending the last two years as an assistant coach at Oklahoma.

McCallum helped the Sooners to a combined 45-17 record, including a mark of 23-9 in Big 12 Conference play, and two NCAA Tournament appearances.

Prior to joining Sampson's Oklahoma staff, McCallum was the head coach at Houston from 2000-04. In 2001-02, he led the Cougars to an 18-15 mark and a berth in the NIT, Houston's first postseason tournament appearance since the 1992-93 season. Houston finished 9-7 in Conference USA's National Division that year, and advanced to the league's tournament semifinals for the first time.

During his stay in Houston, McCallum played an integral role in the development of Andre Owens, who began his college career at Indiana before transferring to Houston and an eventual NBA career with the Utah Jazz and Golden State Warriors.

McCallum made his head coaching debut at Ball State, where the Cardinals posted a 126-76 record from 1993-00. McCallum directed Ball State to two NCAA Tournament appearances and an NIT berth and became the first coach in Ball State history to post seven consecutive winning seasons.

In 1999-2000, McCallum directed the Cardinals to a 22-9 record and the Mid-American Conference's (MAC) Western Division championship. Ball State captured the MAC Tournament title that year to earn an automatic NCAA Tournament bid. When he left BSU, his .624 winning percentage rated as fourth-best in the 53-year history of the MAC.

During his head coaching career at Ball State, McCallum recruited and coached Bonzi Wells, who currently plays for the Sacramento Kings.

McCallum briefly joined the coaching staff at Michigan in 1993 before accepting the Ball State head coaching job.

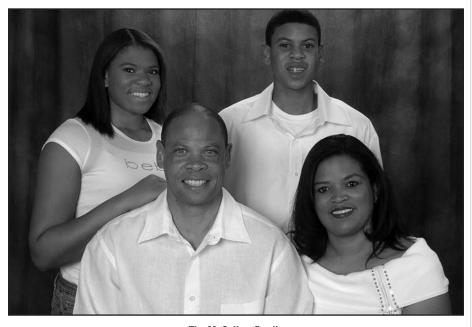

McCallum started his full-time coaching career as an assistant at Wisconsin in 1984. The Badgers had won only 63 games the six seasons before McCallum joined the program. He helped reverse the trend when the Badgers were selected to play in the 1989 NIT -- Wisconsin's first postseason tournament showing since the 1947 NCAA Tournament.

One of the most illustrious players in Ball State history, McCallum graduated as the MAC's all-time scoring leader and became the first BSU athlete to have his jersey retired in any sport. The West Memphis, Ark., native led his team in scoring all four years.

In 1979-80, he garnered MAC Freshman of the Year recognition and earned second-team all-conference honors. He picked up All-MAC First Team and MAC All-Tournament Team accolades in each of the 1980-81, 1981-82 and 1982-83 seasons, and was tabbed the 1981 MAC Tournament MVP and the 1982-83 MAC Player of the Year.

JEFF MEYER • ASSISTANT COACH FIRST YEAR AT INDIANA • 28TH YEAR AS A COLLEGE COACH

Jeff Meyer is in his first season at Indiana University, and the Reynolds, Ind., native brings nearly 30 years of coaching experience to the Hoosier program.

Meyer's coaching resume includes a 16-year stint as the head coach at Liberty University, where he was instrumental in the program's elevation to NCAA Division I status. He has considerable experience at every level of college basketball, including an extensive background in the Big Ten and Big 12 Conferences. A noted recruiter and game strategist, Meyer will play an integral role in the Hoosiers' success. His squads have registered a 484-320 (.602) overall record and have qualified for postseason play 10 times, including six NCAA Tournament (one Final Four and one Sweet 16) and four National Invitation Tournament appearances.

Prior to his arrival at Indiana, Meyer spent two seasons at the University of Missouri under former head coach Quin Snyder. In his two-year stay in Columbia, Meyer tutored forward NBA first round pick Linas Kleiza, now with the Denver Nuggets.

Meyer went to Missouri following three seasons at Butler University in Indianapolis. During Meyer's time at Butler, the Bulldogs were Horizon League Champions in both 2002 and 2003, and advanced to the NCAA Tournament's Sweet 16 in 2003. Butler registered a 69-26 mark during his three seasons on the staff and 12 of the program's 13 student-athletes who exhausted their eligibility at BU went on to earn their degrees. Meyer spearheaded the recruiting efforts at BU and played a vital role in the Bulldogs' player-skill development program, game preparation and strate-

Meyer served as an associate head coach at Winthrop from 1999-2001, where he helped the Eagles win three straight Big South Conference championships and make three consecutive appearances in the NCAA Tournament. He also helped foster an outstanding commitment to academics at Winthrop, as eight of nine student-athletes who matriculated through the program earned their degree.

In 16 years as head coach at Liberty University, Meyer registered a 259-206 mark and led the Flames to the 1994 Big South Conference Tournament championship and a bid to the NCAA Tournament. He directed Liberty to a 23-9 record and a first-place tie for the Big South regular season championship in 1996-97 and played a crucial role in helping Liberty make the transition from NAIA to NCAA Division I.

Meyer's program was just as productive in the classroom, where his teams registered a 90-percent graduation rate (45 of 50 student-athletes) from 1981

Meyer began his career as an assistant to Lee Rose at Purdue University from 1978-80, where he earned his master's degree. During his time in West Lafayette, Ind., he helped the Boilermakers reach the NCAA Final Four in 1980 following a Big Ten regularseason co-championship and NIT final appearance in 1979. Meyer then joined Rose at the University of South Florida during the 1980-81 season, helping the Bulls to an appearance in the NIT.

Meyer and his wife, Karen, are the parents of two daughters, Holli Torrie and Sarah, and a son, Josh.

ROB SENDEROFF • ASSISTANT COACH FIRST YEAR AT INDIANA • 12TH YEAR AS A COLLEGE COACH

Rob Senderoff is in his first season as an assistant coach at Indiana.

Most recently, Senderoff spent four years as an assistant coach with Kent State University, where he helped the Golden Flashes to four-straight 20win seasons and four consecutive postseason appearances, including the 2006 NCAA Tournament. One of the nation's most noted recruiters, Senderoff helped lead Kent State to four consecutive postseason appearances during his tenure on the Golden Flashes' staff. While with the Golden Flashes, Senderoff worked primarily with the post players, including 2004 Mid-American Conference (MAC) First Team and MAC Defensive Player of the Year, John Edwards, who currently plays with the Atlanta Hawks. Additionally, he also coached eventual All-Pro tight end Antonio Gates of the San Diego Chargers at Kent State, as well as current NBA players Wally Szczerbiak and Ira Newble at Miami (Ohio).

Senderoff also has stints as an assistant coach at four other schools, including Towson (2001-02), Yale (1999-2001), Fordham (1997-99) and Miami (Ohio) (1995-97). In all, Senderoff has a combined 12 years of coaching experience at the Division I level.

A native of Spring Valley, N.Y., Senderoff earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Albany in 1995 and a master's in sports studies from Miami in 1997. He is married to the former Lauren Edelstein, and the couple has one daughter, Samantha Brooke (2).

JERRY GREEN

DIRECTOR OF BASKETBALL OPERATIONS FIRST YEAR AT INDIANA

Director of Basketball Operations Jerry Green comes to Indiana University after having spent the 2005-06 campaign in the same role at Oklahoma under Kelvin Sampson. He brings 19 years of head coaching experience and nearly 30 years of coaching collegiate basketball to IU, including five NCAA Tournament appearances. Green boasts a long list of success as a head coach at the Division I level, compiling over 300 wins and making five NCAA Tournament appearances as a head coach. Following a four-year hiatus from 2001-05, Green became Oklahoma's director of basketball operations last season where he helped the Sooners to a 20-9 record and berth in the NCAA Tournament.

Before joining Sampson and the Sooners, Green spent four seasons as the head coach at Tennessee from 1997-2001. While there, Green led the Volunteers to four NCAA Tournament appearances, compiling an 89-36 record. Green won at least 20 games in each of his four seasons. Furthermore, Green's teams led the Southeastern Conference (SEC) in graduation rate, graduating nine of his 10 players. Green earned national Coach of the Year laurels by CBS Sportsline.com and earned NABC District VII Coach of the Year honors in 2000, as well as being named as a finalist for the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) Coach of the Year award that same year.

Prior to his stint at Tennessee, Green spent five seasons as the head coach at Oregon (1992-97), where he amassed a 72-70 mark. The Ducks posted winning records in each of Green's last three seasons and went 52-33 during the span. He led Oregon to its first NCAA Tournament appearance in 34 years during the 1994-95 season, and its first national ranking since 1977.

Green spent four years as an assistant coach at Kansas (1988-92) under Roy Williams, where he helped the Jayhawks to a 103-30 record and to the 1991 national title game. Additionally, he spent 12 seasons at UNC Asheville, three as an assistant coach (1976-79) and his last 10 as head coach (1979-88).

Green played his first two years of college basketball at Spartanburg Methodist College, where he was team captain and Most Valuable Player. He completed his eligibility at UNC-Asheville and earned his degree in physical education at Appalachian State in 1968. He earned his master's degree in education from East Tennessee State in 1971.

Green and his wife, Nancy, have a 31-year-old son, Travis.

TIM GARL

TRAINER 26TH YEAR AT INDIANA

Tim Garl is in his 26th year as Indiana's basketball trainer.

Garl is a regular speaker at both national and international sports medicine programs, including numerous presentations in Asia, South America, Europe and most recently at the European Basketball Championships in Spain. In 2001, he served at the World University Games in Beijing, and in 2002, he assisted with the FIBA World Basketball Championships in Indianapolis. In the summer of 2004, he worked at the Pan American Games in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Additionally, he went to Turkey in the summer of 2005 to work at the World University Games. He is an annual speaker at the NCAA First Team Program - a mentoring committee for high school basketball players.

He has also published several articles about sports medicine issues and basketball injuries. He, along with team physician Larry Rink, M.D., and Bloomington physician Tom Hrisomalos, M.D., authored the U.S. Olympic Committee's position paper on Blood Born Pathogens and Sports Participation. This was the first widely accepted position paper dealing with the subject.

A native of Elkhart, Ind., he served as a student athletic trainer (1975-78) for legendary football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant while completing an undergraduate degree at Alabama. In 1978, Garl was hired at Mississippi, where he served as assistant athletic trainer for all of the Rebels' men's sports. He also completed a master's degree in administration at Ole Miss and completed an MPA degree in health systems management at Indiana in 1989.

Garl has worked with numerous United States basketball teams in international competition, including the 1984 gold medal men's Olympic team and the 1986 FIBA World Championship team.

Certified by the National Athletic Trainers Association and the state of Indiana, Garl has served on the United States Olympic Committees and Sports Medicine Committee. He has served since the 1988 Olympics, and was recently reappointed for another four years. He is the longest serving member on this committee.

During the summer of 1996, Garl was appointed chairman of the USOC's Olympic Sports Medicine Society, the alumni group of the USOC Medical Division, becoming the first non-physician to lead that organization. He also serves as a consultant to the U.S. Antidoping Agency. Garl was also recently selected to the board of directors for the College Athletic Trainers Society.

Garl and his wife, Jennifer, have three daughters (Emily, Meg and Haley).
